Foreign Aid Bill Debate Opens

Measure's Approval Urged By Gordon

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House, moving toward consideration of a $3,242,333,000 foreign aid authorization today, was told Russia's "lesser emphasis on violence" is due only to free world strength.

Chairman Gordon (D-Ill.) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee said in a speech for opening debate on the bill: "The current shifts in the Kremlin mean new faces, but we have no basis whatever for any hope that the old Communist threat has been removed."

Gordon made a strong plea for approval of the measure without major change and floor managers of both parties predicted it would be passed that way. But the bill faced some bitter opposition and several determined efforts at amendment.

Rep. Lawrence H. Smith (R-Wis.), a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, said he considers the bill "dangerous" and "unnecessary."

The measure is "dangerous," he said in a prepared speech, because it "is the almost complete abdication of congressional control. . . . It is unnecessary because the pipelines are already jammed with far more foreign aid funds than administrators can find places to spend."

Gordon said he favors one change in the bill—the elimination of a committee-added paragraph which, it was disclosed today, would bar much of the contemplated aid program for Poland. It would make all assistance provided under the bill subject to the Battle Act, which bans aid to countries which engage in strategic trade with Soviet Russia.

That would knock out special authorization for the President to extend up to 30 million dollars in aid in special cases, regardless of the Battle Act.

Rep. Burleson (D-Tex.), a senior member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, meanwhile made it certain that an amendment would be offered to end trials of U.S. servicemen in foreign courts.

"I'm not only willing to support it, but I'd offer it on the floor," Burleson said.

Cincinnati Drivers Okay New Contract

CINCINNATI (AP)—Striking Teamsters were slated to man their trucks again today after approving—by an apparently slender margin—a new contract with 45 major Cincinnati contractors.

The agreement ends a 37-day strike that clamped a firm lid on about 10 million dollars worth of private and public building in the Cincinnati area, and idled nearly 8,000 workers in allied trades.

The striking drivers, who operate concrete and building materials trucks, first rejected the proposal at a meeting Sunday night by 15 votes, then approved it "by majority vote" after it was re-submitted by local 100 president George Starling.

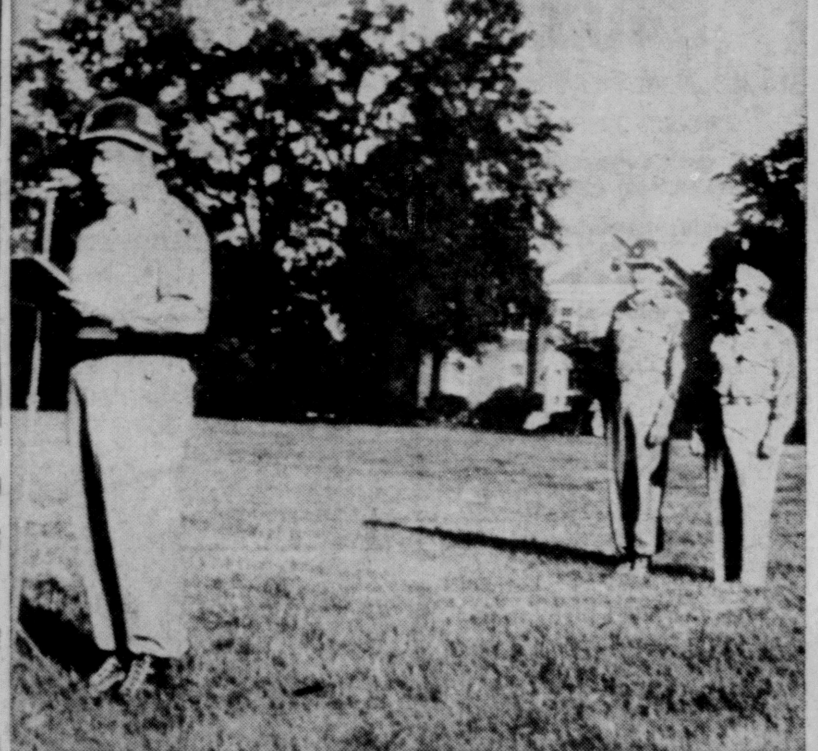

The new agreement, retroactive to June 1, runs until July 8, 1959.

Drivers of regular trucks will get a 13-cent hourly wage increase immediately and operators of "tandem" and single axle tractor-trailer trucks will receive a boost of 18 cents.

Both groups of drivers get a 12-cent hourly raise in the second year.

The combined increases will bring the regular truck operators' wages to $2.45 hourly and those of tandem drivers to $2.55.

The agreement—on wages—is virtually the same as one reached by the Teamsters and 23 northern Kentucky contractors on July 1.

Handful Of 'Evacuees' Shows Up For Test

COLUMBIANA — Although local Civil Defense officials were standing by in readiness and Red Cross units, sheriff's deputies and village patrolmen converged on the scene, only a handful of the 15,000 persons expected to evacuate from Youngstown to Columbiana Sunday afternoon during the CD Operation Alert showed up.

An estimated 60 cars formed along Ohio Route 164 toward Columbiana after a theoretical hydrogen bomb "leveled" the city of Youngstown.

Actually, it was reported, the traffic along the route, where intersections were guarded by state highway patrolmen, was equal to only light Sunday traffic.

In the village, local CD police awaited the "evacuees," assisted by six members from Youngstown headquarters, and 14 from the Salem corps. Radio communications were directed by Floyd Craig of Salem, who was assisted by Jack Carter of Columbiana. George Seederly is the local CD director.

Route 164 was closed to northbound traffic.

The morning Steelers, together with the afternoon Steelers, provide twice-daily service between Cleveland and Pittsburgh via the Pennsylvania Railroad Sept. 8, the railroad announced today.

The loss of $80,000 annually in out-of-pocket expenses and fixed charges for the two trains and a decline in patronage since the opening of the Ohio Turnpike were cited as the principal reason for removing the two trains. The east-bound Steeler stops here at 9:21, and the Cleveland-bound train at 9:33.

The morning Steelers, together with the afternoon Steelers, provide twice-daily service between Cleveland and Pittsburgh via the Pennsylvania Railroad Sept. 8, the railroad announced today.

Patronage in Cleveland - Pittsburgh service began declining when the Ohio and Pennsylvania turnpikes were connected, the railroad said. In addition, passenger train revenue was reduced more than $300,000 annually last February when the Post Office department cancelled the railroad's mail contract between Cleveland and Pittsburgh. This mail now moves by truck on the highway.

"These developments, in view of our System passenger deficit—almost $55 million last year—force us to eliminate hopelessly uneconomical operations if we are to succeed in retaining others that still serve a large number of people," Herbert M. Phillips, regional manager in Cleveland, explained.

Clinton Defense Counsel Reports New Evidence

Says Information Will Have 'Sobering' Effect On Case

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Robert L. Dobbs, chief counsel for the "Clinton 15" in the hotly fought civil rights trial here, said today he has uncovered new information that will have "a very sobering effect on this case."

He ran down "a good lead" during the weekend recess in the trial, he said.

"I've located a person with information that will have a very sobering effect on this case," he said.

The defense will begin calling witnesses after the government's case finishes this week. U.S. Dist. Atty. John C. Crawford Jr. estimates that he will take at least two more days.

Dobbs declined further details about the new witness except to say, "It's someone within the territory of this court."

The case—growing out of riots that broke out when Negro students entered Clinton High School last autumn—is being tried in the U.S. District Court for Eastern Tennessee.

The 15 Tennesseans and lanky John Kasper, New Jersey segregationist organizer, are charged with criminal contempt. The government accuses them of "acting in concert" to flout a federal court order against any interference with desegregating the high school. Clinton is a highland town of 4,500 near Knoxville.

Kasper has told reporters he is prepared to sacrifice himself to help the 15 defendants go free.

"I wouldn't mind going to jail for a year or two in order to get them off," he said.

To that, Dobbs retorted, "his very presence in court is prejudicial."

Pike Driver Spends 10 Hours Getting Flat Tire Fixed

NORWALK, Ohio (AP)—It took 10 hours and almost 160 miles of hitchhiking to get a flat tire fixed on the Ohio Turnpike Sunday.

Jack Maxwell, of Lima, said he hitchhiked the 40 miles between his car and the Vermilion service plaza four times before he got the tire repaired and on his car.

He was on his way to Cleveland with his wife and three-year-old son when a tire blew out, he said. He put on a spare tire which also went flat near the Norwalk-Saunders interchange.

A turnpike patrolman stopped and radioed for a service truck. Maxwell said, but almost three hours later none had arrived.

The family finally hitched a ride with a truck driver to the Vermilion service plaza. Maxwell said he asked a service truck employee to return with him and repair the tire but was told his car was outside the service truck's territory.

The exasperated motorist then hitchhiked back to the car to get the tire, back to the service plaza where it was repaired, and back to the car again. He finally arrived back at the service plaza where he picked up his wife and son.

The turnpike commission, Maxwell promised, would hear about the incident.

The excise tax on public utilities, first enacted in 1931 at the depths of the depression, provided $17,833,727.85 for poor relief last year; and $16,300,000 was appropriated by the legislature and paid from the general fund of the state.

In Mahoning County, state funds for poor relief totaled $765,911.

Salem dispensed $24,132.35 for poor relief during the January through Dec. 31, 1956 period, although no state funds were used in those payments.

Nationwide Alarm Out For Killer

New York Police Identify Victim Of Trunk Murder

NEW YORK (AP)—A bullet-pierced body found squeezed into a tiny tin trunk was identified Sunday night as that of a Philadelphia man who came here three weeks ago to look for a job.

The murdered man's fingerprints led police to identify him as James F. Malloy, 53. They said he was fingerprinted when he applied for a job as a painter at the Philadelphia Navy Yard in 1942.

Since then he had rented a room off and on from Oscar Schaeffer of Philadelphia. He came here three weeks ago to hunt for a job and rented another room.

Schaeffer told police Malloy was "quiet, unassuming and perfect gentleman" and used the room about once a month. He kept a painter's ladder in the room and usually wore work clothes, Schaeffer said.

A doorman at the New York building where Malloy rented a room said he had seen the man alive Friday night.

Earlier, police reported that the man was shot three times with a .22-caliber weapon. They said he was "probably" still alive when jackknifed into the trunk.

The crime was discovered Saturday night when a clerk noticed an odor coming from a trunk on a Railway Express agency platform on Manhattan's West Side.

Police pried the trunk open and found the body.

Nationwide Alarm Out
A nationwide alarm was sent out for two unidentified men who delivered the trunk to the agency.

Police said the murderer operated with remarkable coolness. While the victim lay dying, the killer sealed the three bullet holes, the nose and the mouth with adhesive tape and bandages to block bleeding.

Fire Loss Heavy In E. Liverpool

Supermarket Stock, Fixtures Destroyed

EAST LIVERPOOL — Damage was estimated unofficially today at $100,000 in a Sunday morning fire here that destroyed virtually all the stock and fixtures in a big supermarket operated by Loblaw's Inc., and caused heavy damage to one end of the brick and concrete one-story building.

Firemen battled about an hour before bringing the blaze under control with the aid of 25 volunteers from both the east and west departments of Liverpool Township. Chief Charles Bryan said low water pressure hampered the fire-fighters.

Chief Bryan said the blaze started from a faulty electric motor on a compressor that helped keep the meat storage cases cool. The compressors were in a separate room in the north end of the building, where the blaze was concentrated.

The intense heat also buckled the wall in the north end of the building, the chief said. The structure is owned by Mike Turk, East Liverpool auto dealer.

A Loblaw official from the Youngstown district office said all the stock and equipment, including meat and vegetable display cases, must be hauled out and junked, the chief said. The major share of the damage was to the company's stock and equipment, he said.

Central station firemen received the alarm at 7:27 from a passing woman motorist on her way to church.

Chief Bryan said water pressure was so low firemen could use only one one and a half inch hose. The short water supply was supplemented by a 500-gallon tanker brought to the scene by one of the volunteer departments, he said.

Although the building is mostly of brick and block construction, the area around the meat department was framed in the interior with wood, the chief said.

The market fronts on Routes 7 and 30 inside the city limits. Police kept traffic moving.

Southern Senators Express Confidence

Attack By Civil Rights Supporters Held Likely

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Ervin (D-NC) said today he sees "a good chance" to reduce the administration's civil rights bill "to what its supporters have been trying to advertise it to be—namely, a voting rights bill."

While Ervin and other Southern senators expressed confidence they were gaining ground, they are likely to run into an increasing counterattack from supporters of the House-passed bill once the preliminary skirmishing is ended.

So far the Senate debate, now entering its seventh day, has been technically on a motion of Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California to take the bill off the calendar and bring it up for action.

This is to be voted on late Tuesday, and even the bill's all-out foes concede the motion will carry.

Once this happens and the Senate turns to actual consideration of the bill and the amendments, proponents plan to jump into the debate. To date, in the largely content to leave the largely content to leave the speech-making to Southern foes of the bill.

The measure, passed by the House last month, would establish a six-member commission to study civil rights problems, and create a special civil rights division within the attorney general's office.

Another part, designated Section 3, would permit the attorney general to obtain federal court injunctions against violations, or threatened violations, of voting rights and other civil rights instead of having to rely on criminal prosecutions.

Persons accused of defying the injunctions could be convicted and jailed for contempt of court without a jury trial.

Still another section makes similar provisions specifically limited to voting rights.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), leader of the Dixie forces, offered an amendment Saturday to rip out the whole of Section 3. He and other opponents contend that section is aimed at forcing racial integration in Southern schools and other public places with the use of federal troops if necessary.

Later in the day Sen. Mundt (R-DS) announced he would offer a substitute for the House-passed

U. S. Explodes 7th Nuclear Device

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP)—"Diablo," the nuclear device that behaved like a dud two weeks ago, burst with a stunning purple hue over the Nevada desert at 4:30 a.m. (PDT) today.

The explosion, seventh of the current summer test series, was set off from atop a 500-foot steel tower.

The cloud from the blast rose swiftly to an altitude of about 30,000 feet. The portion above 15,000 feet then began heading toward southeastern Utah. The Atomic Energy Commission said the air mass probably would switch directions later and head for Wyoming.

The portion of the cloud below 15,000 feet dispersed rapidly.

The blast was about half normal in size, or roughly one-half as powerful as the atomic bombs dropped on Japan during World War II.

5 Arrested As Result Of Road Mishaps

Dazed Driver Walks Away After Crash That Injured Six

A total of 12 persons were injured and five arrested Saturday and Sunday in a series of six auto mishaps which occurred on area roads.

Six persons have been admitted to Salem hospitals as the result of the accidents.

One motorist, dazed by a collision, wandered 10 miles through fields and woods before being found and taken to City Hospital.

Six persons were hurt in one accident that took place Saturday night at 8:45 on Rt. 172 in New Alexandria between cars operated by Floyd Morris, 20, of Alliance, and Robert Kelly, 16, of 871 N. Ellsworth Ave.

State highway patrolmen said the accident occurred when Kelly failed to stop at the intersection of Rt. 172 and the North Georgetown-New Alexandria Road and was struck broadside by Morris' vehicle.

Kelly was headed west at the time while Morris was traveling north. Patrolmen said Kelly's car was pushed across the intersection into a ditch while Morris auto continued for a short way after the impact.

Injured in Kelly's car were: Kelly, a brain concussion.

Larry Snyder, 17, of 909 Newgarden Ave., lacerations and contusions of the right eye and abrasions of the chest.

Robert Zeppernick, 15, of MC 1, Salem, lacerations of the scalp, skull fracture and severe lacerations of the right hand.

Kelly is in fair condition today in the Salem City Hospital while Zeppernick is reported as fairly good in the Central Clinic. Snyder was treated and released.

Hurt in Morris' car were: Morris, abrasions of the left arm, Donna Morris, 19, of Alliance, abrasions of the left knee and back.

Idella Morris, 39, of Salineville, lacerations of the right and left leg. They were treated and released.

Patrolmen said Kelly was dazed by the impact and wandered into nearby woods shortly after the accident. They said he was not found until some 14 hours later at the Mahoning County Dairy near Westville.

When found, Kelly was tired, scratched and soaking wet. He had wandered some 10 miles during the night from the scene of the accident. He was cited by the State Patrol for reckless operation.

Man, 61, Drowns In Ohio River

Thrown Out Of Boat When Motor Starts

EAST LIVERPOOL — A 61-year-old Newell potter was drowned Sunday afternoon in the Ohio River while attempting to swim to shore after he was thrown out of an outboard motorboat by a lurch when the motor started.

The body of the victim, Raymond C. Robinson, was recovered about an hour later at the spot where he drowned about 100 feet upstream from the guide wall of lock 8. His companion, Walter Pasco of Newell, also was thrown in the river when the boat sank during his struggle to save Robinson, but he managed to swim to shore.

The victim, a bench boss at the No. 5 plant of the Homer Laughlin China Co., had resided in Newell since 1941. His wife, Mrs. Leona Robinson, was visiting in Cameron, W. Va., at the time. She arrived home late Sunday night.

Witnesses said the two men launched the outboard about 4 p.m. on the West Virginia shore about 100 feet above the guide wall which guides river boats into the locks.

The outboard was launched off a trailer after a jeep used to tow it had been backed into the stream to help float the craft.

The men shoved the boat out of the shallows and then attempted to start the motor. Witnesses said Pasco struggled with the balky motor for a time and it started just as Robinson stood up in the boat.

The lurch threw the victim overboard. He clung to the craft while Pasco attempted to save him, but in the struggle the little outboard shipped water and finally capsized, throwing Pasco into the stream.

Witnesses varied on estimating the distance from shore. Some said the boat was 100 feet from shore, others said the distance was only 30 feet.

After the boat swamped, Robinson decided to swim to shore. Both men had been clinging to the bottom of the craft. Robinson suddenly started to struggle and called for help, sinking beneath the surface. After futile efforts to rescue his companion, Pasco got to shore.

About an hour after the drowning, the body was recovered by a crewman from the downbound river boat Allegheny, which was waiting to be locked through when the accident occurred.

Dr. George Naymick of Weirton, Hancock County coroner, ruled accidental death by drowning.

Civil Rights Issue May Aid Knowland's Presidential Bid

WASHINGTON — Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) apparently has seized on the civil rights controversy in the Senate as offering an issue that might make him the Republican presidential nominee in 1960.

Knowland, the Senate Republican leader, said Sunday night he will announce next fall whether he intends to seek the Republican nomination for governor of California. He had announced previously he would not run for reelection to the Senate next year.

Knowland said he has arranged tentatively to make 45 speeches in all sections of California after Congress quits. He said his schedule for those speeches would depend upon the adjournment date, which is uncertain because of the battle over the administration's civil rights bill.

Although Knowland declined to say whether he had made any decision, friends think he already has made up his mind to take on Republican Gov. Goodwin J. Knight for the GOP nomination for governor in next year's California primary.

Knowland said he would have some announcement after he has traveled over California for about 30 days next fall. If he runs for the governorship, the supposition is that he will be attempting to place himself in a position to bid for the presidential nomination two years later.

Perhaps with this in mind, Knowland has taken the leadership in efforts to get the House-passed civil rights bill before the Senate. His motion to bring the measure up officially is scheduled for a vote late tomorrow, with every indication that it will be carried.

By stepping into the civil rights fight, Knowland is identifying himself with an issue that comes home to the voters in politically vital sections of the country.

He further pointed out that the

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

This nation in its time has exercised itself over rum runners, gun runners, slave traders and dope smugglers but it is taking with almost a serious federal security report that it is quite possible that the enemy may easily smuggle portable atomic bombs and bacteriological warfare containers into the country.

This report is just a few weeks old. But the fear of such hot cargo in a modern pirate ship flying a friendly flag goes back seven years.

Then, after being briefed by our counter-intelligence forces, some of our congressmen — who could hardly be classified as frightened men or galloping warmongers — arose in the House and Senate to warn of the possibility of a big Russian egg blowing up a giant sea serpent or spreading epidemics out of a satchel.

AMONG THOSE who pulled a Paul Revere were New York's Rep. Emanuel Celler and Washington's Sen. Warren Magnuson.

A law was passed giving the president of the U.S. the power to screen sailors, longshoremen and others who go down to the seashore for their daily bread.

There was much moaning at the bar of many a waterfront joint frequented by Communist operatives when Sen. Magnuson got up in the Senate and warned:

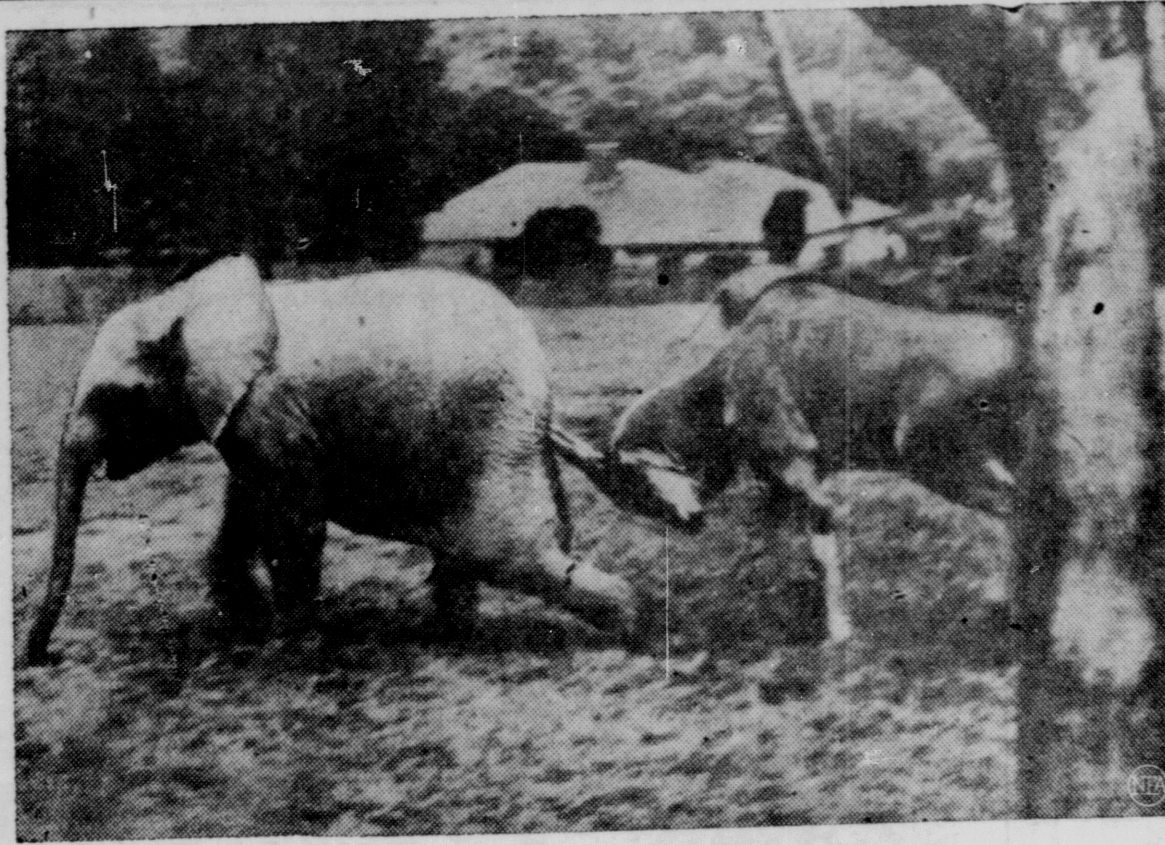

"This is a limited emergency measure to take care of the waterfront security of the nation."

"It is to prevent the entry into our port of foreign flag ships without notice either to the Coast Guard or to the FBI, and enable them to make a search of the ships before they reach our territorial waters, in case they might have in their holds something which might be destructive."

"It would be impossible for destruction to come to any great port of the U.S. of which there are many, as a result of a ship coming into the port with an atomic bomb or with biological or other destructive agency without some liaison ashore."

"This (bill) would give authority to the president to instruct the FBI, in cooperation with the Coast Guard, the Navy, or any other appropriate government agency, to go to our waterfront and pick out people who might be subversives or security risks to this country."

THE LAW was passed. The Coast Guard screened like mad some 837,524 waterfront workers.

SCRAM, BUM! — An angered eland—normally a timid animal—uses his head to chase away a young elephant on one of the wild animal reservations at Albert Park, Belgian Congo. The elephant butted into the eland's area but quickly found out that two can play at the butting game. The moral of the picture might be: Don't butt into other people's business.

The screening picked up 3,788 dangerous men.

This cost us $1,275,000 — about $1.22 a man. Just about as cheap as the Fish and Wildlife Service's tender care for brook trout.

Now comes the Congressional Commission on Government Security with a warning that our ports are as open to a pirate ship as they are to the summer sun.

After long study, this commission believes that our screening system has broken down. It believes that there are powerful Communist waterfront elements which can still cripple the docks, despite the crippling of the Communist party itself, and that the Communist undercover world is working with the underworld.

There just doesn't seem to be any money for effective protection even of the nation's 10 major ports and four minor harbors.

WE BEGAN with 4,772 Coast Guard officers and men in 1950. At the last count, in 1955, port security operational personnel units totaled 110 officers, 18 warrant officers and 872 enlisted men.

They have to check incoming vessels on a 24-hour continuous harbor entrance patrol at the 14 ports. And there also are restricted zones of operations where military and explosive cargoes are handled.

This involves the need for shore-side and waterside patrols, pre-loading inspection of ships and facilities, issuance of permits and actual supervision by trained men in loading of explosives, including the atomic and hydrogen bombs which were shipping abroad.

There is no really trained Coast Guard security force. There is no effective investigation anywhere on which to base security clearance of manpower.

Screening is limited now to forwarding applications to the over-worked FBI which can do little more than check finger-prints and check names of each man wanting to work the ships and docks.

THE NEW Security Commission report warns that:

"The Coast Guard has no investigative unit for screening applications for security clearance, as it holds it has no authority to request further investigation of any applicant. No money is appropriated for the Coast Guard to pay for an investigation by the FBI or other investigative agency."

This should please Brother Harry Bridges, whose Pacific Coast union, the independent Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's, backed a committee to fight all screening of waterfront workers.

I wonder why he hates that security screening so? But he does. There was all that moaning at the bars he frequents around Frisco bay.

This And That

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't read his mail:

That the great wall of China, stretching 1,900 miles, is the world's longest cemetery... built over 2,000 years ago, it is the last resting place of 200,000 workers who died during its construction.

That one American out of every five drinks an average of five cups of coffee daily.

That the porcupine's quill is actually a hollow hair... but try and tell that to anybody who has been stabbed by one!

That there are enough blood cells in the human race to carpet the surface of the entire world. (The big problem of the 20th century is to see that they aren't used for his purpose.)

That there is a book out entitled, "Things You Can Buy For a Nickel." ... Yep, it's a short book.

That in Persia it is believed human tears are good for certain chronic diseases... So mourners at funerals often are presented with sponges to soak up their tears... Afterward the sponges are collected, wrung out and the tears bottled.

That Lola, the basset hound in the Broadway musical, "Li'l Abner," is a temperamental as any human star... She turns up her nose at ordinary water... insists on seltzer.

That Dr. Henry Gibbons gave this scientific description of a kiss: "The anatomical juxtaposition of two vibiculis oris muscles in a state of contraction."

Any questions? That, if you're planning a second honeymoon at Niagara Falls, you'd better not postpone it too long... Some experts believe the falls, which are steadily receding, will be gone in another 5,000 years.

That Montgomery Ward's new catalogue lists among the things you can buy by mail: mink stoles, an ice skating rink for children, a $6,695 diamond ring — and a raincoat for your dog.

That it was Seneca, the Roman wise man, who observed, "Men do not care how nobly they live, but only how long, although it is within the reach of every man to live nobly, but within no man's power to live long."

Guarding Your Health

By DR. EDWIN P. JORDAN

Questions and Answers

I am often asked whether a disease or a particular operation is "serious." Almost any physical or mental defect or disease and almost any operation should be taken as serious. However, there is a great variation in the degree of risk from disease, injury or operation. Thus the word "serious" merely expresses a vague sense of the degree of risk involved.

Q — I am taking care of my father and cooking his meals. However, I am not acquainted with a diabetic diet, though I know some foods he shouldn't eat. I have been told by others that I have been giving him a lot of foods which he shouldn't have. Please advise. — Mrs. W. B.

A — You should not cook for your father if he has diabetes unless you have specific advice from his physician as to just what foods he should have and how much. Some people with diabetes can eat foods which are dangerous to others. In each instance the diet taken by a person with diabetes should be adjusted to that particular person's condition.

Q — I have a heart which goes 140 to 150 or more on exertion and around 96 to 100 at rest. Getting up at night will throw the heart into a dither. This is kind of scary. — A Friend.

A — The situation described does not sound normal and I think that your heart should be carefully examined. Then only can you be told what you should do about it.

Q — One hears often of cholesterol in the blood choking the veins. Is it possible that facial creams could be absorbed through the skin and cause trouble? — Mrs. J. N.

A — I have never heard this theory before and would consider it extremely unlikely that facial creams could affect the level of blood cholesterol or the deposits in the blood vessels.

Q — Can a man 55 suffering from a duodenal ulcer still continue drinking alcoholic liquor? — Mrs. C.

A — Most physicians would consider it undesirable.

Q — I am 81 and have hot flashes. Would you please say something about this? — Mrs. B.

A — In the absence of more information it is impossible to guess of the case of these unpleasant sensations. One would suspect that they are caused in some fashion by the state of the blood vessels.

Q — Some time ago I read that

ADMIT 24 ROBBERIES CLEVELAND (AP) — Sixteen persons rounded up by police Sunday night, including a 15-year-old girl, have admitted 24 robberies since May 26, police said. Detectives said the gang worked in teams, usually three to a robbery. Augustus Miller, 22, and William McCorkle, 23, arrested after they allegedly disarmed two policemen investigating a robbery Friday, broke down under questioning and identified the gang, detectives said.

JAYCEES PLAN DRIVE MARIETTA, Ohio (AP) — A drive to increase membership in the Ohio Junior Chamber of Commerce to 12,000 by the end of the year was asked Sunday by E. J. Platt, Canton, president of the Ohio Jaycees. Present membership is 9,870. Some 250 Jaycee officers from 60 Ohio cities concluded their two-day convention here Sunday.

DIES IN CAR CRASH BROWNSVILLE, Pa. — A 33-year-old Middlefield, Ohio, man was killed Sunday when his car plunged through a guard rail and down a 50-foot embankment on a rural road near here. He was identified as Harrison H. Wiseman. Officers said he apparently fell asleep at the wheel.

Now, The Burning Issue

What happens from now on to William S. Girard, the young American GI turned over to a Japanese court to stand trial in connection with the death of a Japanese woman on a target range, will be incidental.

It was only the fuse to light the issue that his defenders were trying to get ablaze — the right of the chief executive of the United States to make executive agreements with foreign governments.

The Supreme Court merely affirmed what Girard, his lawyers, all the politicians who have interested themselves in his case and the Defense Department knew to be true. There is no legal barrier to keep the president of the United States from making executive agreements about the status of this country's military forces overseas.

The issue is whether or not Congress should and could revise the Constitution to destroy this presidential authority to enter into agreements that have the force of treaties.

This is Ohio Sen. Bricker's fight for his proposed amendment to deny agreement-making power to the White House and transfer it to Congress.

The fight began during the Truman administration. It was carried over into the Eisenhower administration, the first overt sign that the forces rallied by Sen. Bricker were in a showdown fight with the President for dominance of the Republican party.

The fight is the essence of intraparty politics. The Bricker proposal is a challenge to President Eisenhower to prove that he can command enough votes in the Senate to stave off what would have the effect of a no-confidence vote if he lost it.

With prospects of drawing help from dissident southern segregationists with a score to settle over civil rights, the challengers are back in action.

The young GI in Japan is out of it. He will be tried by a Japanese court, where his chances of getting off easy are considered to be good.

The fuse has been lit on a red-hot political issue between Dwight Eisenhower and opponents who hope to use the proposed Bricker amendment to embarrass him in a showdown vote in the Senate.

With the help of southern segregationists, they might do it this time. They came within one vote of doing it in 1954. Needing 61 votes to submit a modified form of the Bricker amendment to the states, they could rally only 60, with 31 opposed, and had to back down.

Smothered To Death

Once upon a time — this is an allegory and the time is really right now — there was an old southern household that did not have a proper way to keep its members on an even footing with one another.

Things went from bad to worse until there was a neighborhood scandal about the raw deal some of the people in the establishment were getting from the dominant faction.

So the neighbors bought a new set of scales on which everybody could be weighed, with the idea of proving that no man could be bigger than any other man on his own say-so.

But when word of this reached the southern household, there was a squawk like ten thousand ducks being plucked while still living.

The dominant faction said it would not permit the scales to be on the premises because the people who were getting the raw deal might melt down the material, convert it into potato mashers and use the mashers to mash potatoes.

And what harm could come from mashed potatoes? Why any fool, according to the dominant faction, should know that if you had enough mashed potatoes you could smother an opponent with them. It would be a death even more horrible than being filibustered into the hereafter, which was what the dominant faction proposed to do if the neighbors insisted on letting those lethal scales be on the premises of the old southern household.

End of allegory.

Mostly In Timing

The morbid Soviet practice of chopping up discredited politicians into mincemeat after they have been shuffled into the discard is not too unlike a morbid U.S. practice to permit a comparison.

In this country, politicians chop up one another during campaigns. The net effect is to make the public wonder how the country survived under the bumbling rule of the ins and outs who can hope to pull through if the chowder-headed ones get into power. This happens not only in contests between the two major parties but with special fury in bloody intraparty contests for nomination.

The Soviet system looks pretty foolish from this distance, but there are times when the U.S. system tests public confidence in political leadership, too.

The difference is mostly in timing. The Russians do it after the issue has been decided in private. Americans do it while the issue is being decided in public.

Treaty With Japan Doesn't Violate Constitution

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled only that the government had the right — and not on whether it was right — to let the Japanese try GI William S. Girard for shooting a woman to death.

The court reached its decision in four steps. Some background is necessary to understand them:

Every foreign country, being a sovereign power, has the right to try an American, civilian or serviceman, for a crime committed within its borders unless, by agreement with the United States, it willingly gives up its right to do so in certain cases.

The United States worked out the following agreement with a number of countries where it has troops stationed, including Japan:

1. If an American, civilian or serviceman, commits a crime while not on official duty, as in the case of Japan, the Japanese are free to try him.

2. But the United States has first claim — or primary right — to try him for a crime committed in performance of duty or in certain other circumstances.

3. In cases where the United States has the primary right to try — but Japan insists on bringing him to trial — this country will give "sympathetic consideration" to the Japanese claim.

In short, in such a case this country could turn a serviceman over to Japan even though the crime he committed was "in performance of duty."

The Japanese did not deny that Girard was on duty when he killed the woman while she was picking up empty shells on a maneuver area. Girard had been assigned to the area by his commanding officer to guard a machine gun.

But the Japanese did argue his shooting the woman was not "in performance of duty." They asked to try Girard on a charge equivalent to manslaughter. Eventually, this country agreed to turn Girard over to the Japanese.

Girard's lawyers appeal to the Supreme Court. They said turning Girard over to Japan was a violation of his constitutional rights as a citizen. The Constitution guarantees a citizen in this country a right to trial by jury. In Japan judges do the trying.

The court took the following steps in deciding not to interfere with the Eisenhower administration's decision to let Japan try Girard:

1. It found that an American in a foreign country has no immunity to trial by that country's government unless it has agreed to let the United States, in some circumstances, try him.

2. It found that the agreement with Japan was not unconstitutional. This country had made its agreement with Japan under a treaty approved by the Senate. The treaty therefore was constitutionally okay.

3. It found further that this agreement was not contrary to any existing American law.

4. Since there was no conflict with the Constitution or any law, the court would not interfere with the executive branch of the government to conduct foreign affairs. This treaty came under foreign affairs.

So the court refused to interfere for Girard.

Pre-Retirement Gimmick

By WILLIAM RAPP

The automobile industry, by now well hardened to unusual collective bargaining requests from Walter Reuther's pugnauciously well-remembered United Auto Workers, is about to be faced with a demand unprecedented in American labor-management relations — a jointly administered, industry — financed pre-retirement counseling program.

Until now the undisputed preserve of a relatively small number of paternalistic firms, pre-retirement counseling has been viewed with little interest or considerable suspicion by unions. Generally, labor leaders have set their bargaining sights for older workers on pensions alone.

UAW leaders, however, claim that management's responsibility to its older employees is not discharged solely by the payment of a pension at 65.

They hold that both management and the union must prepare the senior for the facts of life after R-day, through a board advice and education program which will help the retiree live on a reduced income, use his new leisure time effectively and guard his health.

Adequate counseling takes time and money; the UAW wants management to supply both, subject to the collective bargaining process like other benefits.

The sprawling, 14-million member union, which only eight years ago won its first industrial pension from the Ford Motor Company, has come a long way in providing for its oldest. A few months ago, 3,000 delegates to the union's constitutional convention voted to set aside part of a dues increase for a separate retired workers program.

An estimated $25,000 a month will be available for a variety of local programs for retired people and for a model all-service center for the senior in Detroit.

With nearly 80,000 retired members — and their number increasing at the hard-to-handle rate of 1,000 a month — the UAW has been operating an expanding recreation program for the past five years.

Appropriately named "Drop-In Centers," these union "homes away from home" in downtown Detroit, Lansing, Flint and 20 other cities feature hobby work, card playing, occasional classes, social gatherings and conversation. The clubs are open to all older people, not just union members. Visiting committees leave from the centers to call on home-bound seniors.

Although the union is young — the average age of its members is 38 — it gives top priority to problems confronting the older men in the shop and in retirement. Retired members pay no dues, but they have full voting rights.

Anti-Semitism Wave Feared

By BERNARD KAPLAN

PARIS — Since Stalin's death, Jewish cultural and religious life, all but snuffed out of existence during the 1930's and 1940's, has been allowed slowly to revive, though still within certain limits.

Jewish informants here, watching worriedly for a hint of Khrushchev's future intentions toward the Jews now that he is able to exercise full control, are waiting to see whether this trend toward at least moderately greater freedom for the Jewish community is allowed to continue.

For Khrushchev is regarded by them as an out-and-out anti-Semite, a man who takes far less trouble to hide his feelings on this score than even Stalin did.

They believe that Khrushchev would not hesitate to employ an age-old tactic of Communist and Czarist rulers alike — making the Jews, the scapegoats of dissatisfaction and governmental failure.

The possibility of this is taken so seriously that it already has been discussed by French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau and the Israeli ambassador in Paris.

As seen here, the chief safeguard against an outburst of animosity against Russia's two million remaining Jews is the fact that Khrushchev himself was the primary unmasker of the notorious "Jewish doctors' plot" to murder Stalin. In his famous party congress speech reviling Stalin, he revealed that the "plot" had been nothing but a frame-up arranged by Stalin and the secret police.

Jewish informants maintain that the new Soviet Boss' vindication of the doctors was motivated by political expediency not by a spirit of justice. They pointed out that in Poland the present regime has been battling an upsurge of anti-Semitism, at least partially encouraged by Moscow.

Not Done Yet!

Will To Do Is Needed

By RAYMOND MOLEY

Once more the President has returned to the homey truth that centralized government is the enemy of human liberty. He never has phrased it so well as in his speech to the state governors at Williamsburg.

His conclusion was that the dark background of Eastern Europe should give us "renewed determination to hew to the principle of the diffusion of power, knowing that only thus will we ourselves forever avoid drifting irrevocably into the grasp of some form of centralized government."

The fatal trend in this country toward centralization in the federal government the President believes to be largely due to the inaction of the states in the face of some "undeniable needs," plus in some instances, such as housing, the swarming to Washington of mayors and other municipal people asking for federal help.

ALL THIS is true. But his interpretation of who is the judge of "undeniable needs" is open to some question.

In the case of school construction, which he cites as an example of such need, he has accepted the interpretation of pressure groups of professional educators, such as the National Education Association.

This is despite the denial that federal aid is needed not only by the governors of many of the states, but by the task force of his own Commission on Intergovernmental Relations and by his own White House Conference on Education.

The President suggests that a practical means of stopping the federal government's war of occupation against the states should be the creation of a committee of representatives of the states and federal government.

This committee should specify activities that should be returned to the states and also the tax sources now taken over by the federal government which should be returned to the states.

There is, however, plenty of information already assembled which might be acted upon by the President and the leadership of Congress, with or without such a committee.

THERE IS the report of the President's own Commission on Intergovernmental Relations with its various task-force researches. There are the reports of the two Hoover Commissions, also with task-force contributions of great value.

Notable among these was a report in 1949 by a task force headed by T. Jefferson Collidge on exactly the point made by the President at Williamsburg.

The magnificent report by Adm. Ben Moreell's group on water resources in 1955 was studied by a Cabinet committee appointed by the President. The Cabinet committee submitted an excellent report.

There was also a monumental study by the National Association of Manufacturers which specified many activities which might be taken over by the states and the tax sources, seized by the federal government, which if returned might enable the states to do their jobs.

ALL THESE MASSES of information have been gathering dust for years.

There are those who have suggested that instead of initiating new federal invasions of the states, the administration and the responsible leaders of Congress might have made some use of these plans for decentralizing government before this.

These critics see in the new committee only the vision of new delays and new reports to gather the dust of years to come.

What is needed, they say, is the will to stand up against some of the pressure groups that infest Washington and the government bureaucrats who are allied with them, and to start cutting back federal activities.

There is plenty of knowledge. What is needed is the will to do.

Canada's Wheat Surplus

By ERIC DOWNTON

OTTAWA — The Canadian government is expected to develop its own "special deals" program to dispose of wheat in foreign markets. This is likely to add another headache to the U.S. farm surplus problem.

Faced with the heaviest wheat surplus in the Dominion's history, Premier John Diefenbaker's newly elected Conservative administration is reported to be preparing to try methods previously shunned in its efforts to get grain moving from the bursting prairie elevators to foreign ports.

Ottawa in recent months has been sharply critical of Washington's various "giveaway" devices for farm surpluses. By offering various concessions, Canadian officials maintain, the U.S. government has in effect been dumping wheat and other agricultural products in world markets at cut prices, often depriving Canada of sales.

Particularly resented was the disclosure a few months ago that the U.S. government was inserting clauses in its foreign aid program which compelled countries receiving help to commit themselves to buying American farm produce.

For the new Canadian government, brought into power in early June by the surprise political reversal in the general elections, the wheat surplus problem is the most pressing issue it must face.

Discontent among western farmers over the late Liberal administration's handling of this perennial issue was among factors causing the Liberal downfall.

Premier Diefenbaker, who is himself a lawyer from the Saskatchewan wheat country, has made strongly worded promises to the farmers that something shall be done. This particular campaign promise came very quickly home to roost and the Tories must do something soon.

Ottawa may now do what Washington has been doing for some time in foreign markets: Accept payment in local "soft" currencies and offer long-term credits. Barter deals might be arranged.

All this will make it harder for Washington to dispose of American surplus wheat.

A sort of indirect global pre-cutting war of wheat sales between Ottawa and Washington is by no means out of the question.

For the crop year ending July 31, Canada's total wheat supply, including the carryover from last year, should reach a record-breaking 1,200,000,000 bushels.

And indications are that wheat exports for the current year will be substantially less than the 309 million bushels shipped last year.

Ancient Riddle Solved

By H. J. THOMSEN

CAIRO — An Egyptian archaeologist has unearthed two perfectly preserved pulleys which solve an ancient riddle of how the pyramids were built.

Dr. Salim Hassan, chief adviser on antiquities to the Egyptian government, dropped a bombshell into a quiet luncheon meeting of 40 American scholars, teachers and ministers in Cairo when he disclosed that his excavations have brought to light pulleys used 3,500 years ago to raise 2-ton limestone blocks to the top of the 400-foot Khufu Pyramid.

Until now Egyptologists have believed that he pyramid builders did not have the pulley, although they are known to have made wide use of ropes.

Many theories have been advanced to explain the stupendous achievement of King Khufu's tomb builders who moved large stone blocks into location in the famous pyramid meant to become his burial place. The generally accepted theory is that the stone was quarried from a low ridge in the Mokattam hills across the Nile, worked into shape, floated downstream and hauled on land barges that moved on rollers to the pyramid site.

According to the theory, a huge incline of earth and bricks was built. The two- or three-ton stones were then pulled or pushed up to place, after which the temporary road was removed, much after the fashion of modern scaffolding. No descriptions of this work have yet been found.

Scholars have believed that the Egyptian builders, not inventive themselves but skilled at using the discoveries of others, did not have the pulley. As recently as 1953, Dr. William C. Hayes, of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, published a statement that pyramid builders "never knew the pulley or the block and tackle and never developed them."

The two pulleys have been put on display in the Cairo museum. They are still in working condition.

Form Letters For Moscow

Dearest Pal: Just a few lines to express my deep appreciation of our close and lifelong association. You and I have worked shoulder and shoulder for 40 years. There is nothing like true friendship. You know this as well as I do. So get out of my sight at once or else.

Sig . . .

Old Friend: As I sit here tonight thinking of our lifelong contacts and affiliation, I am very much moved. We have been inseparable, our faith in each other complete. Consequently the time has come to denounce you as a conspirator, an enemy of the state, a reactionary and a heel. Scram!

Sig . . .

DEAR BUDDY: This is just a note to a man with whom I have long worked like a brother. The thought fills me with sentiment. I hope you are well and happy. Will you go quietly or must I give you the heave-ho as a despicable plotter against the people?

Sig . . .

My Lifelong Friend: How the years fly! It doesn't seem possible that you and I joined the cause as kids away back in 1916, planned, labored, spoke and acted together without the slightest friction. Our theme song was over "Dear Old Pal of Mine" and I hum it tenderly at this moment. What is more important in life than mutual admiration? Don't answer! Take the nearest exit and keep running, you louse.

Sig . . .

Dear Damon: I always called you Damon and you called me Pythias. We were that close. Ah, the wonderful memories as we walked hand in hand! However, let's get to the point. I have decided to purge you. Drop me a line from the salt mines.

Sig . . .

AS HARRY TRUMAN opened his library crammed with papers do you suppose he used Jimmy Durante's famous line, "I got a million of 'em?"

Would you call Khrushchev the Russian bear that walks like a bulldozer?

Judge Kenneth Wynne, who began life as a cub reporter back home the same week we did, becomes chief justice of Connecticut in August. . . . That's the record for a long distance climb from the newspaper business.

Ten thousand lawyers are meeting in New York at the Waldorf for a convention of the American Bar. . . . (We assume there were a few holdouts for the Blackstone.) It will be a week when hotel clerks will get fairly accustomed to "What's a good musical? Answer yes or no."

A FIVE-TONE 63-foot ballistic missile, largest in the free world, is on exhibition in Grand Central Station, N.Y.

A friend of ours looked at it and exclaimed, "That reminds me; I promised the wife I'd bring home something to kill rosebush beetles."

The huge weapon is pretty awesome, and may explain why so many porters have evidently taken to the hills and are nowhere around.

Why it was put there, we don't know, but figure somebody, an optimist obviously, thought it might frighten the New Haven Road into getting the trains out on time and into New England without any delay.

Katherine Hepburn plays "Portia" in the Stratford, Conn., Shakespeare theater. . . . In view of that town's nearness to Bridgeport, would you say she plays "Bridge-Portia"?

The demand for foreign cars has reached such a point in America that the U.S. auto builders are holding frequent office conferences.

bill that would strike out Section 3 and provide for jury trials when issues of fact were involved in contempt cases growing out of the enforcement of voting rights.

Mundt said his substitute was designed as "a measure the Southerners can't vote for, but one with which they can live."

He said that it would curtail the powers of the proposed civil rights commission so that it could issue subpoenas only in cases involving voting rights.

Further encouragement for the Southern forces came from the disclosure by Sen. Anderson (D-NM) that he is drafting an amendment which, like Russell's, would erase Section 3 of the bill.

Anderson, at the start of the congressional session this year, led a futile fight to revise Senate rules to make it easier to break filibusters—the Southerners' ultimate weapon against civil rights measures.

But he said in an interview that he had become convinced that the bill passed by the House is "too stringent."

"I want the Negroes to vote and I believe that if Congress passes a bill guaranteeing them the right to vote, it will be respected," he said. If not, he said, Congress could toughen the law.

While Russell, Ervin and other Southern senators applauded these developments, Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.) said he would "resist any amendment" of the bill. Also speaking out against any compromises were Senators Javits (R-NY) and Potter (R-Mich.).

Boy Falls In Well; Saves Self By Grabbing Pipe

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—A four-year-old boy tumbled into an abandoned well Sunday, caught hold of a short length of pipe jutting from the well's wall, and hung on for 20 minutes until rescued.

The youngster, Larry Ritter of Fredericktown, Knox County, was playing on the cover of the well when one of the planks gave way. He tumbled into the 28-foot well, which had 13 feet of water at the bottom, and caught hold of the pipe half-way down.

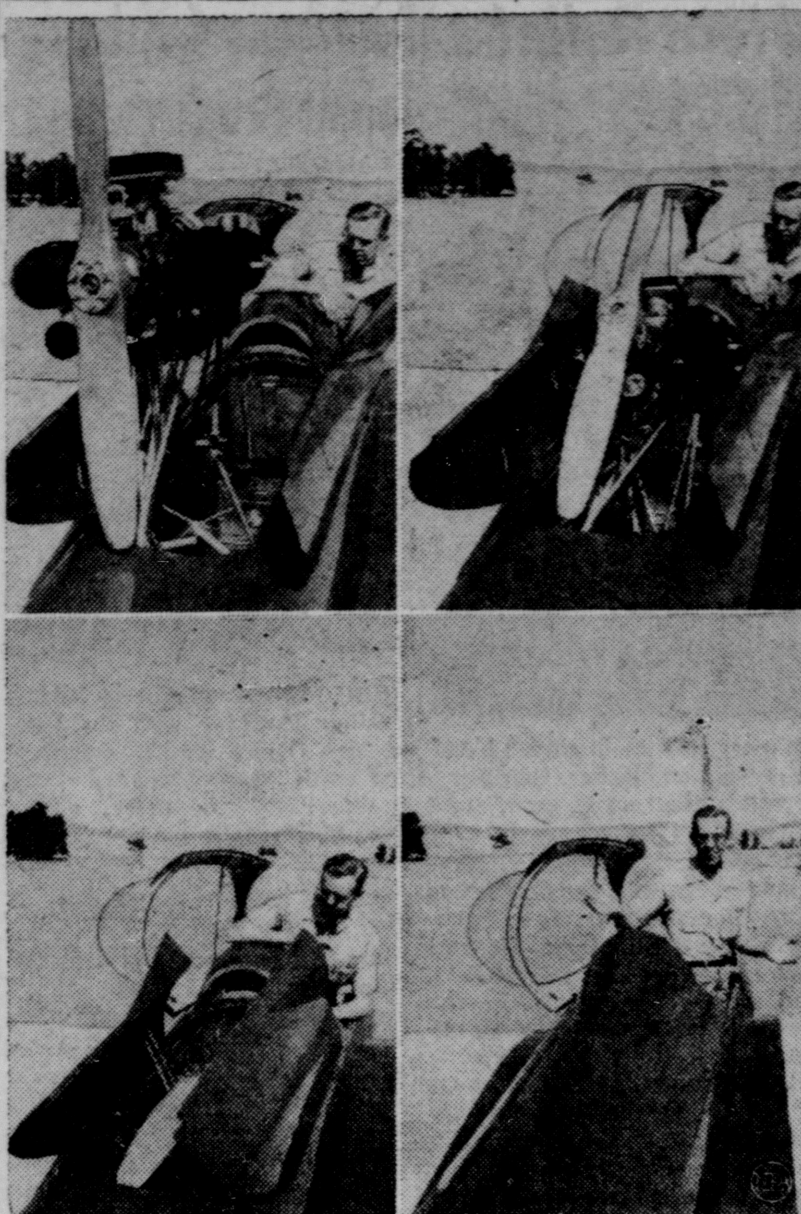

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Ritter, heard his screams and called the Franklin Twp. fire department.

Volunteer fireman Clarence Whisler crawled into the well and carried the boy to safety.

The Ritters were visiting the farm owned by Clark Dinolous in southern Summit County.

cial to us. That's why we wanted a separate trial for the 15."

Defense attorneys contend that segregationists in Tennessee and all over the South have been hurt by Kasper's actions.

A Sunday afternoon rally — or "preachin'" as Kasper described it — failed to throw any light on the dark-haired organizer's popularity, or lack of it, in these parts.

About 15 automobiles showed up at a meadow on the farm of Joe Diehl, and Kasper called off the meeting. Rain had started to fall. He said threatening weather had "kept folks away."

But a man pressed a $20 bill into his hand. "Keep up the good work, John," he said. "This is from the white folks around here."

A grey-haired little lady then said, "I've been thinking about you every day, John, and praying for you. God's still on his throne."

A chorus of "amens" and "hal-lelujahs" came from the others. Well, thank yuh, ma'am," Kasper replied. He has acquired a reasonable facsimile of the Tennessee highland accent.

Then, despite the rain, he made some typically easy-flowing statements for the television cameras about his views of the trial, integration, etc.

He said he had spoken at a Ku Klux Klan meeting in Gaffney, S.C., Saturday night. For the cameras, he introduced Bill Hendrix of Clearwater, Fla., who identified himself as a member of the Imperial Council of the Southern and Northern Knights.

While Kasper claims he is working closely with the Klan in his fight against integration, Hendrix seemed to indicate otherwise.

"We work with a lot of people," he said. "But we don't believe in riots or violence like some do."

bound traffic from Route 14 at the north edge of the village to North Lima with auxiliary police posted along the four-mile distance. Chief of Police William McGuckin and Arthur Carpenter directed the Columbiana regular and auxiliary police; while the Columbiana County sheriff's office was represented by James Miller, chief deputy, and Deputy Harry Gray.

Red Cross units were at the public square and other units accompanied the unpretentious convoy from Youngstown. The two lanes of cars began arriving in the village at 2:45 p.m. when the lines of traffic were diverted to east and west.

The exercise was supposed to have been the first attempt to "evacuate" a large portion of an Ohio industrial city.

In Youngstown, a communications problem caused sirens to sound Friday six minutes after the theoretical bomb was to have hit. CD said that the breakdown was between the control station and an alarm center in Colorado.

Murder

He lined the trunk with newspapers and plastic sheeting before cramming the body inside. Odorous erasing mothballs were also tossed in the trunk.

The body was clad only in silk shorts.

A medical examiner said Malloy had soft hands and apparently had done "no laborious work" recently. He had expensive dental capping of the kind favored by entertainers.

The trunk was marked for shipment to "Hal Jefferson, Hotel Ambassador, Los Angeles, Calif." But police said there was no such person at the hotel and no reservation for anyone by that name.

Police said the two men who delivered the trunk to the express agency were apparently unaware of the gruesome contents. They made no effort to conceal their faces. And one remarked, after paying the $40.92 shipping charge, that they could "drink up the change" from the $50 bill they offered.

Lemonade Gives Heat Relief

Old-fashioned lemonade is keeping step with modern life. Today, a quart can be made instantly with a six-ounce can of California frozen concentrate for lemonade.

Serve it in goblets or brandy snifters with frosted rims. To frost glasses, dip rims lightly in lemonade, then in sugar; chill.

Frappe the lemonade in a blender and serve elegantly in champagne glasses with short straws. To make about three cups of frapped lemonade, place contents of one six-ounce can frozen concentrate for lemonade and three cups finely cracked ice in chilled blender. Put top on blender. Run blender until consistency of snow, about 20 seconds.

To give a Southern flair, serve in glass mugs with sprigs of bright green mint.

What could be cooler — looking than a long drink of lemonade in a Pilsener glass garnished with a lemon slice, a maraschino cherry and a sprig of mint?

Here's another way: serve in squat juice glasses with whole cinnamon stick stirrers. To make stirrers, string two whole — cinnamon sticks together on a toothpick.

Cost of living went thataway...
Price of electricity went thisaway

In the last 25 years, the price of just about everything you buy has gone way up.

Yet the price of electricity has gone down. In fact, if yours is the typical American home, you're getting twice as much electricity for your dollar today as you did 25 years ago. Your bill may be higher, but that's because you put electricity to so many more uses.

How have we been able to keep power prices down? Partly because you use so much more electricity. Also because we're always looking for the best ways to serve you.

WHETHER ON FOOT, horseback, in a canoe or a dog sled, modern geologists are burrowing under the snow and glaciers of Canada's Northwest in search of oil. The hunt for oil in this 600 thousand square miles of rugged country involves a constant struggle against the weather. Bitter winters menace equipment, some of it so delicate it can record a heartbeat at 10 feet. In summer, hot weather causes a drain on men and animals. But, despite nature, these geologists are pushing into the wilderness to find the valuable oil.

Don't Run For Plane If Door Doesn't Open, Close Properly

When a door refuses to open and close properly, the first thing nearly every home owner does is run for a plane, a file or sandpaper.

Actually, removing any wood from a door to get it back into working order should be a last-resort operation. Most of the time, the sticking or binding is caused by one or more loose hinges.

The hinges should be checked by opening and closing the door at varying degrees of speed, observing whether there is any hinge movement. This will have to be done carefully, since the hinges, at first glance, may appear to be solidly attached to the door and the jamb. But often it takes only the tiniest fraction of an inch movement — as little as 32nd of an inch — to throw the door out of line.

If NO HINGE movement is noticed, use a screwdriver to test whether every screw in each hinge is tightened securely. If a screw goes in all the way, yet does not seem to be gripping firmly, it means that the screw hole has become enlarged.

A temporary cure is to use a slightly larger screw yet one which fits into the opening in the hinge. The better way to handle this problem is to remove all the screws from that particular hinge and fill the holes with wood putty, plastic wood or a wooden plug.

When the filler has hardened (not necessary if a plug is used), the hinge and screws are replaced in their original positions.

SHOULD ALL THE screws be seated firmly, a shim may be the answer. A shim, in this case, is merely a piece of cardboard placed under the hinge leaf which is attached to the door jamb.

If the door binds at the top, remove the screws from the top hinge leaf, place the cardboard under it and replace the screws. The screws thus will go through the cardboard before going into the wood.

If the door binds at the bottom, use the shim under the bottom hinge leaf attached to the jamb. In either of these cases, a little experimenting may be necessary, such as a thicker piece of cardboard or two pieces of cardboard instead of one.

Or you may find that the shim should be very small, just enough to fit under the edge of the hinge leaf without the screws going through the cardboard.

NONE OF THIS WILL work if one or more of the hinges is defective. Usually, a hinge will last as long or longer than the door itself, but a replacement must be made when the hinge is cracked or bent.

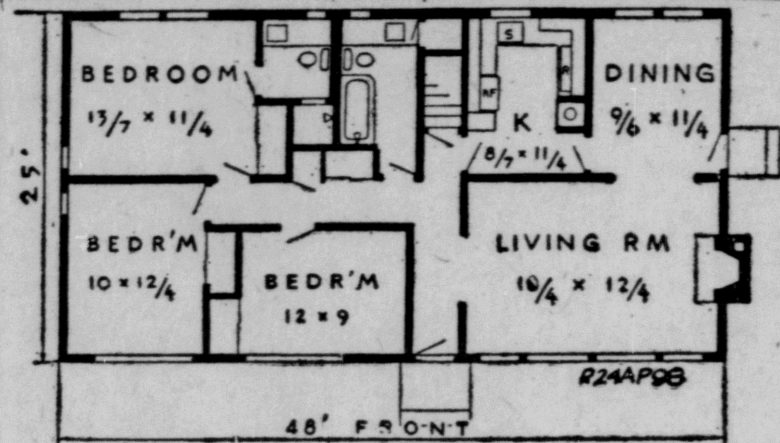

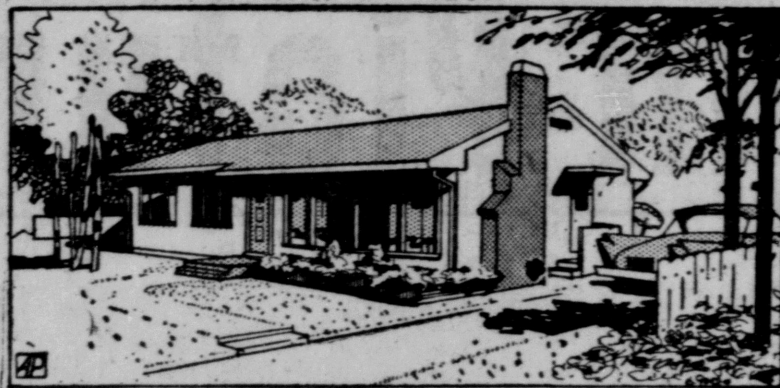

An excellent way to avoid future strain on a door that is used often is to add a third hinge, midway between the other two.

If the hinges are of the conventional butt type, the third hinge will have to be set into the mortises in the door and the jamb just as the others are. You can do this without taking down the door, using a chisel and mallet to cut out the mortises. In purchasing a third hinge, get one of the same size and type as the top and bottom hinges.

WHEN YOU ARE absolutely certain that loose hinges are not causing the trouble, then you will have to plane, file or sand the part of the door that is sticking.

Do this a little at a time, since the tendency is to take off too much wood and leave an unsightly gap. And be sure that the area worked on is repainted or revarnished.

One of the main causes of a warping door is that paint or varnish is not applied to the edges and ends. That's where the moisture takes its toll — and that's where the finishing material is most important.

A SEPARATE ENTRANCE hall is one of the prime features of this tightly designed three-bedroom ranch home. The el-shaped living-dining room has a large glass area toward the street and wide windows in the dining alcove. The design covers 1,200 square feet. It is plan R24AP98, by Architect Jan Reiner, Box 12, Boston 17, Mass.

The Department Of Inquiry

Q — I plan on putting down resilient tiles on the concrete floor slab of an extra room we had built recently. I was under the impression that only asphalt tile could be used on such a floor, but a neighbor tells me that vinyl tile can also be placed over concrete in contact with the earth. Can you straighten me out on this?

A — For a time asphalt tile was the only acceptable resilient flooring material for concrete floor slabs. However, vinyl asbestos tile is now being made especially for use on concrete. It is important that you get vinyl asbestos, and not ordinary vinyl tile.

Q — We are having a house built soon. I understand there is some method of determining how much window space there should be in a room so that there will be sufficient daylight. Is there anything you can tell me about this?

A — Most building codes recommend that the glass area be not less than 10 per cent of the floor area of each room. But this is generally believed to be insufficient, especially on cloudy days. Most well-designed houses have glass areas in excess of 20 per cent of the floor area. However, to insure even distribution of the greatest amount of daylight in a room, many factors — involving the individual house and its location — must be considered. A good architect is your best bet.

The Statue of Liberty weighs 225 tons.

SETTING FOR A PATIO — This patio area gets maximum sunlight, filtered through the exciting roof screen. The roof section is striking in appearance, but simple in design. The structural elements are extensions of the rafters of the roof. By this device, the patio area becomes an intimate part of the home easily reached from the living room.

Handy Man Can Easily Repair Doors Damaged By Storms

The combination door didn't close properly. And there you are, hanging on to it for dear life, while a summer storm does its best to tear it from your grasp and complete the destruction of the first, slam-bang opening caused.

You'll be in no mood to meditate on repair procedures, but the incident might serve to remind you that even doors need periodic inspection and maintenance to keep them working properly.

LET'S SUPPOSE, for example, that your door is of aluminum, set in an aluminum frame which in turn is fastened to the wood door frame.

Hinges have been bent, metal rod in the pneumatic door closer is bent, S-hook at the end of the safety chain has been almost straightened out. And the frame has been partially pulled away from the door jamb.

The first task is to fix things temporarily. Unscrew coupling that attaches door closer to jamb. Push frame back in place — a few light blows with a wooden mallet should do the job.

Loosen hinges, pull pins, reset door in frame, put pins back and tighten hinges.

Your door won't be in working condition, but at least you won't have to hang on to it while you plan your attack on the actual damage.

FRAME SCREWS will have to be replaced, usually, with longer and possibly heavier screws. Tighten frame so that it squares up sufficiently to eliminate rub where door meets frame.

If you have a shop anvil, you can have a try at straightening hinges. The shoe from an old iron, ironing surface up and mounted on a board, makes a fine portable anvil.

Lay door on the drive, with hinge on anvil and try pounding it out. Work carefully. Aluminum is soft enough so that moderate pounding only is needed.

Pounding directly on drive or sidewalk is not recommended. If hinges are badly bent, save yourself much wasted effort — buy new ones.

Here's where you'll need a hand. Have someone help by holding the door in place before you tighten hinge screws. Wedge door at the threshold and on its open side while you set hinges and tighten screws.

If door sags after wedges are removed, you'll have to use large er screws or drill new holes in hinges to take the old ones. Fill old holes with one of the plastic-aluminum compounds now in the market.

IF CONNECTIONS FOR your door closer are bent only, you'll be able to straighten them. However, if steel shaft of closer is bent or if metal is torn, it's best to buy a new unit.

Drill new holes for fastening if you can't match exactly the original equipment. Fill old holes in the door with plastic-aluminum compound. Straighten S-hook with large pliers.

While you have your tools out, check the strike plate for the door catch. It's usually extended outward from door frame with several strips of wood or metal, and looks much like a party sand-

Casein glue is more resistant to moisture than animal glue. Plastic resin glue is even more resistant to moisture. But only a glue marked "waterproof" on the container can be used for outdoor purposes.

Q — How long can I keep flower seeds from annual plantings?

A — It all depends on the particular flower. For example: morning glory seeds will germinate after up to 10 years in storage. Consult a library reference book on flowers, or write to one of the seed companies for information on other seeds.

NEW LATEX PAINT

Latex paints usually require at least 30 days to harden and cure before they can be washed safely. A new type of latex paint, reinforced with vinyl, is said to be washable in less than a week.

Gather Your Weapons, Girls; Men Are Plotting Conspiracy

Get yourself a good assortment of secret weapons, girls. The male is planning to hitch you to a plow.

Time was when the lady of the house didn't even put up her own curtain rods. Go up on a ladder? Perish the thought. But how times have changed.

Nowadays any woman who can't discuss power, leverage, precision timing and automatic gear shift is just plain old-fashioned.

In just a few short years men have educated women to the mechanical age. They repair the dripping faucets. The modern kitchen resembles an airport control tower — levers, gadgets, and knobs galore with the lady of the house acting as engineer.

THE HOUSEWIFE WHO was recognized as chief cook and bot-

SALESMEN ARE IN on the pitch too. I found myself "picking" over some lawn mowers, to use a term from the bargain basement. The industrious salesmen never once mentioned the affinity of men and lawn mowers. "It's the easiest one available for women," he said. "There's no strain. No puff. It has speed control, adjustable cutting heights, safety clutch. You can hang it up in the garage." But best of all, said the man, "it is LIGHTWEIGHT."

Those are the magic words being passed from male to male and then to women, the subtlest propaganda of the age, when you notice who is reclining in the hammock on a lovely summer day.

WHAT EVERY BRIGHT homeowner needs is her own subtle retaliation. If you want to debunk the idea of women working while man is lurking, here are some suggestions:

1. Try the "pecking away at the nerves" technique. When he suggests you use the ladder to clean the windows ask him if the disability insurance is paid up and whether the doctor is in his office that day. Mention casually that yesterday you were dizzy and got spots before your eyes from climbing up on the kitchen step stool.
2. ATTACK HIS POCKETBOOK — that's where it will really hurt. When he suggests you drill the holes in the 2x4's, say resignedly something like, "Well, better make a date for a manicure now, then." One small paint job calls for a new hairdo, maybe even a permanent wave if hair is too paint splattered. Emphasize the possibility.
3. Nothing drives a man crazier than to answer the same "dumb questions" time and again. After he tells you not to touch the power mower pars while the machine is running, bend down in front of it as if you were going to. That will bring him off the chaise lounge with a spring.

Home Repair Dos And Don'ts

CONCRETE PATCHING

DO . . . repair a hairline crack in concrete by sweeping out all dust and dirt, wetting it down and brushing in a flowing mixture of portland cement and water.

DO . . . repair a medium crack or opening by undercutting the edges (making the crack wider at the bottom than at the top), removing loose materials, wetting down and filling with a workable mixture of cement, sand and water.

DO . . . repair a large break the same as above except that the patching material should be a workable mixture of cement, sand, gravel and water or prepped gravel mix.

DO . . . when patching driveway, use the gravel mix but reinforce it with metal (such as hardware cloth or chicken wire) pressed down about half-way into the mixture.

DON'T . . . neglect an important part of concrete patching—the curing, which consists, in most cases, of wetting the concrete a couple of times a day for several days.

DON'T . . . forget, however, that curing a large patch which will be exposed to the wind and sun also requires covering it with straw, burlap, canvas or sand (after it has hardened slightly) and moistening the covering every day for a week or more.

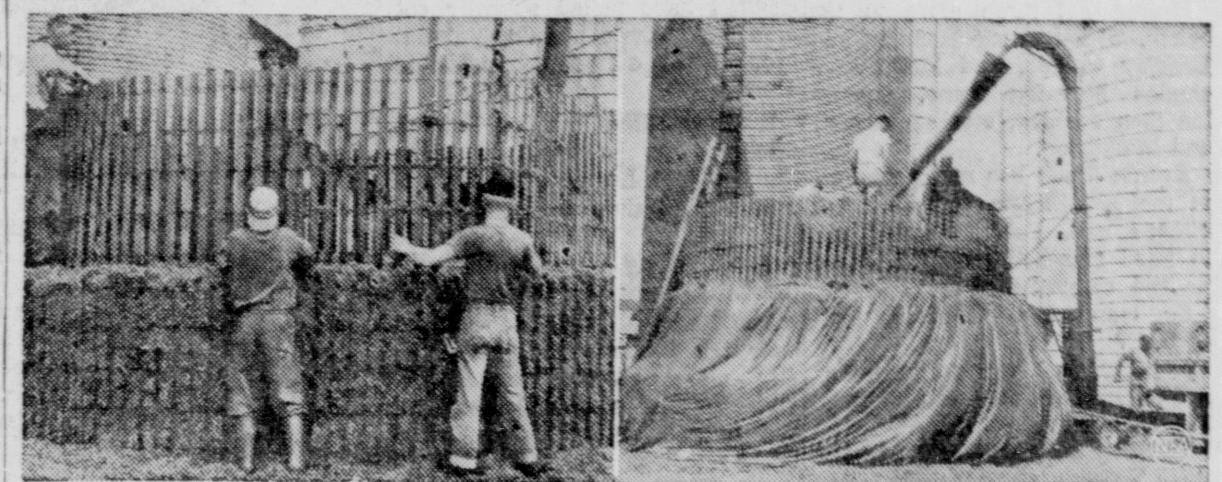

DON'T . . . use metal trowel if you want to get a rough finish to match the surrounding surface; use a wooden float for that purpose, as a metal trowel water weakens concrete.

DON'T . . . overlook the principle of making strong concrete: use only enough water to make the mixture workable, since too much water weakens concrete.

Science Gives the Farmer a Portable Silo

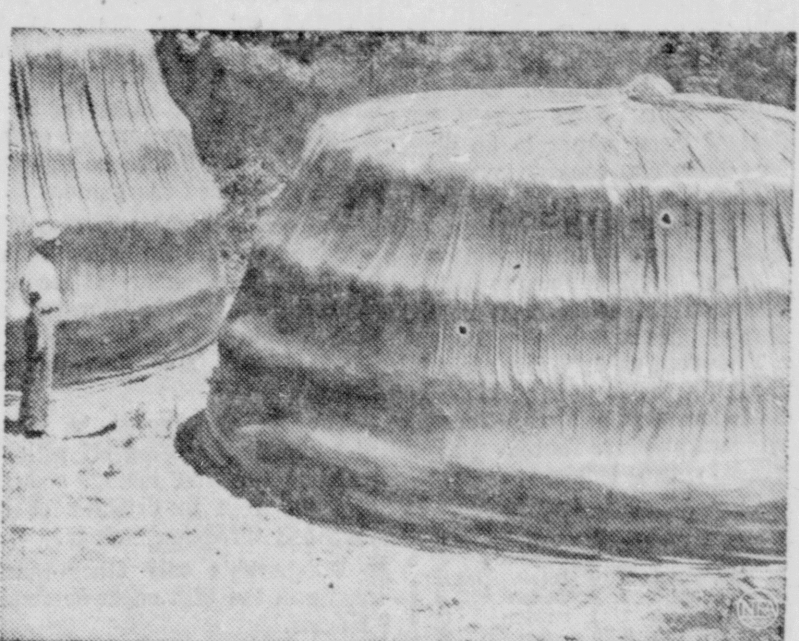

Plastic film is gathered like stocking and spread in circle on any level plot of ground . . .

Fence is moved to second layer . . .

Silage added, third layer formed . . .

The portable silo of vinyl plastic shown here is science's latest boon to farmers. It was developed by the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, Rutgers University, in cooperation with the Bakelite Company. Tests at 33 leading university experimental stations indicate the silo makes possible the preservation of high quality silage at less expense and reduces cattle feed costs, with resultant higher profits for the farmer. The bag-type silo is available in 40 and 80-ton capacities. A snow fence is set up and silage is poured into the enclosed area and packed tightly. Then the fence is removed and set up, in a smaller diameter, atop the first layer. The process is continued until silo is finished. Top is gathered and tied.

The completed silo is tied at the top with stout cord.

Asphalt Roofing Gets Severe Test

Scientists at the National Bureau of Standards have subjected asphalt roofing to 20 years of harsh "weathering" in little more than ten months.

The tests were made in a device called an "accelerated durability" machine, which poured concentrated light, heat, and "rain" on the shingles to test their durability.

The machine — one of a number used by the scientists in their constant search to find better materials to make better homes — is a large rotating drum. The roofing material was attached to the inner sides of the drum, which was then rotated constantly through 22-hour-long cycles a day. Each cycle consisted of 51 minutes of ultra-violet light for heat and "sunlight" and nine minutes of light accompanied by a cold-water spray of "rain."

After tests ranging up to 300 days, the research team made their data available to roofing manufacturers for use in maintaining the high quality of asphalt shingles and roll roofing.

Q — I understand I can get my GI loan entitlement restored if I have to sell my house because of getting transferred to a job in another city. But what if I'm transferred to another job in the same city, on the other side of town? If I sold my house, could I get my loan rights restored?

A — Generally a change of jobs within the same metropolitan area would not be considered a reason for restoring your loan rights. However, restoration might be approved if you could show compelling proof that the change of job location involves substantial increase in the time or cost of transportation to and from work.

Q — I have a World War II GI term insurance policy. If I needed a loan, could I borrow on this policy?

A — No. World War II GI term insurance has no borrowing value. However, your World War II term policy may be converted to permanent insurance, which does begin to build up a loan value after it has been in force one year.

A — A friend of mine recently lost his sight as a result of a World War II combat injury. What is his deadline for obtaining a VA grant to buy an automobile?

A — He has three years from the time his blindness occurred to file an application for a VA grant for an automobile.

Q — I am a disabled Korean veteran taking vocational rehabilitation training. Will my monthly subsistence allowance end as soon as I am declared rehabilitated?

A — No. It will go on for two months after you are declared rehabilitated.

The area of Europe is 3,842,000 square miles.

A — No. World War II GI

Down On The Farm

Shorts and Middlings

Hens eat less when temperatures are high, say Ohio State University extension poultrymen. At 100 degrees feed consumption of layers may be less than half that observed at normal pen temperatures.

Alfalfa leafhoppers commonly cause the second and third cuttings of alfalfa to become yellow and stunted. There is no way to correct this situation after it has taken place, say Ohio State University extension entomologists.

There are more than 55,000 grain combines on Ohio farms, according to Ohio State University extension economists. In 1930 there were 170.

If present plans of swine producers are carried out, hog prices until mid-1958 should average little if any lower than comparable periods a year earlier, according to Ohio State University extension economists.

Ohio farmers voted 60.2 percent in favor of marketing quotas in the recent wheat referendum. Ohio balloting was light with only 5,033 farmers voting.

TURN OUT BIG WOODPILE

Oregon's 1000 sawmills last year manufactured 8.9 billion feet of high grade lumber, or enough to build 890,000 five-room modern homes. Largest output was Douglas fir, the nation's leading structural lumber, which was shipped into every state of the union. Large quantities of west coast hemlock, western red cedar and ponderosa pine were also cut.

PAINTING PAYS OFF

It is estimated that unpainted and exposed wood will wear away at the rate of 1/4 inch in 100 years when exposed to heat and cold, rain and sun, freezing and thawing.

The Spaniards who accompanied Columbus on his fourth voyage gave Costa Rica, or "rich coast," its name when they saw Indians there wearing gold ornaments.

Parker's Wins Two; Deming's, Herron's Victors

Eljer Blasted By Kenmar's

Double Bill Hurdled
By Wayne Russell

Ageless Ironman Wayne "Muscles" Russell pitched both ends of a double header Sunday afternoon and evening, leading his Parker Chevrolet team to defeat Westville 5-1 and blank Hendron's 5-0, in county softball tournament play.

In other tilts played, Deming's beat Lisbon V.F.W. 7-4, Kenmar ripped Eljer 11-2, and Herron's shutout Deming's 7-0.

Contests Saturday night found Kenmar clipping Old Dutch 6-2, Herron's defeating Bloomberg's 7-4, Hendron's trouncing East Side 13-9, and Eljer edging Moore's 5-2. All games were played at Kelley Park. Bloomberg's were eliminated from tourney play by their loss.

In the first contest Sunday Russell pitched a beautiful two-hitter to knock the Westville Lakers out of the tournament. Parker's backed Russell with eight hits, including a home run by John Baker over the scoreboard in deep center field in the sixth inning with a mate aboard.

PARKERS DREW FIRST blood in the bottom of the second. Laughlin singled and was sacrificed to second. On the play at first Drakulich was safe when the ball was dropped. Baker and Harrigan struck out, and Russell then doubled down the left field line to score both runners.

In the fourth frame Westville scored their only marker when Downey tripled and scored on an overthrow.

In the fifth Parker's made it three to one when Carmelo, Billet, and Oesch hit successive singles with nobody out. Parker's scored its last runs in the sixth when Baker hit his home run.

Lisbon rallied for four runs in the bottom of the seventh but it wasn't enough as Deming's eliminated them from further tournament play. Deming's tallied first. Gardner walked, Ferguson singled and, with two outs, Rogowski doubled, both runners scoring.

Deming's made it 3-0 in the fourth. Hardy tripled, and Rogowski singled, scoring Hardy.

LISBON TALLIED THEIR first marker in the sixth. Hammett reached first on an error, D. Boyd was hit by a pitch, and J. Siefke singled, scoring Hammett.

Both teams scored four runs in the seventh. Deming's Rayniak popped to third, Feicht doubled, Gardner walked and Ferguson doubled them in. Hardy tripled, scoring Ferguson, and Hardy scored on an error.

Lisbon's rally fell short. McDevitt was safe at second on an error, and after Logue grounded out third to first, Betteridge beat out an infield hit, moving McDevitt to third. McDevitt scored when Hammett reached second on an error. After D. Boyd walked to load the bases, J. Siefke singled in two runs and another scored on an infield out.

Eljer started off with a run in the first inning when Dickey walked, moved to second on an infield out, and scored on H. Miller's single.

Kenmar pulled ahead in the third when they scored two runs. Back to back doubles by Reesh and Steitz tied the game, and Steitz put Kenmar ahead when he scored on an error.

KENMAR LET LOOSE in the fifth frame with seven big runs. Consecutive singles by Esterly and Bush put runners on first and second, and a double by Mulch scored both runners. Spear sacrificed and was safe on an error and Jones singled both men home. Huda's two-base error scored Jones, Reesh bunted safely, and both men scored on Esterly's ground rule double.

Eljer scored their last run after consecutive walks were given to H. Miller and Peppel. H. Miller scored on an infield out.

Kenmar scored their last two runs when Mulch tripled and Spear walked. Spear stole second, and Mulch scored on the catcher's error. Spear then scored when Beatrice was safe on a two-base error.

Russell came right back in the evening to pitch a terrific four-hitter against the powerful Hendron's squad.

Russell struck out the side in the second canto.

Neither team tallied in the first two innings, but Parker's started moving in the top of the third. Baker struck out, Harrigan grounded out, and Russell singled. Carmelo walked and Billet singled, loading the bases. Oesch singled and on an overthrow to first, Russell and Carmelo scored. Pridon popped to the catcher.

IN THE FOURTH FRAME Parker's scored again. Haynam walked, Drakulich sacrificed, Haynam reaching second, and Baker tripled of the right field fence, scoring Haynam.

Parker's tallied their last two runs in the sixth. Pridon doubled and reached third on an error. Haynam singled, scoring Pridon, and Drakulich grounded into a double play, pitcher to second to first.

Baker smashed his second home run of the day over the scoreboard in deep center field, the ball clearing the second fence.

Herron eliminated Deming from any further play in the tourney as Leo Kline pitched a beautiful three-hitter.

Herron got two runs in the third. Yeagley walked, moved to second on an infield out, went to third on an error. With two out, Halderman walked and stole second and Kline singled them in.

Herron got three more in the fourth. With two out Manning and Yeagley walked, and McQuist on singled Manning home. Crookston then doubled, scoring Yeagley and McQuist.

Herron made two more markers in the fifth. Kline was hit by a pitched ball, Roelen singled him to third and both runners scored on the catcher's error.

Six teams are left in the tournament.

Kenmar, last year's runners-up, are favored on the basis of three straight wins.

TOURNEY ACTION WILL continue Tuesday night with East Liverpool's Moores tangling with Parker's Chevrolet at 6:30.

In the 7:45 tilt, Herron Transfer takes on Old Dutch, with Leo Kline battling Bill Herman, and at 9, Purity Dairy plays Sekely in a first of three games to be played for the girls county tournament championship.

Wednesday night county play will again be interrupted when Chappell and Zimmerman ball club takes on the Drive-In team in a donkey game.

Thursday at 6:30 the second in the girls series will be played, to be followed at 9:45 with Tuesday's winners playing. Tourney play will precede two league games.

Ted Williams Has Perfect Day

Cleveland Scores Double
Win Over Boston 3-2, 17-4

CLEVELAND (AP) — The 10,612 Little Leaguers who sat in sunny Cleveland Stadium Sunday afternoon as guests of the Indians had plenty to talk about on the neighborhood sandlots today.

They saw a close game in which their favorites, the Tribe, came from behind in a thrilling last-inning rally. That was the first game, in which Bob Lemon bested Willard Nixon of the Boston Red Sox, 3-2, in a pitchers' duel.

They saw the home club pour it on in the second game with 20 hits to win 17-4. The Boston fielders made three errors in the eighth inning when the Indians scored nine runs.

They saw Ted Williams have a perfect day at bat with a home run and two singles in the first game and a pinch homer with a man on base in the second. Williams now has 25 home runs, one more than his total last season. His batting average went up to .359, six under Mickey Mantle's league-leading mark.

The two Cleveland victories moved the Tribe to within a half game of third place and gave the Indians a four-game winning string to carry into the three-game series which opens with Washington here Tuesday night.

The double setback was the first Boston has suffered this season. Lemon held the Red Sox to even hits in the opener and rookie Stan Pitula yielded a like number in the nightcap. It was the first time this season both Tribe hurlers in a twin bill finished what they started.

"I like to think he's as good as ever, maybe better," Lem said afterward. "If he isn't, I'm sure slipping."

By winning, Lemon brought his season record to 6-8. Pitula is 1-1. The loss of the first game was a tough one for Nixon who had given only three hits and had a string of six hitless innings when Gene Woodling and Vic Wertz doubled in the ninth to tie the score at 2-2.

First baseman Norm Zaichin threw wild on Rocky Colavito's sacrifice bunt, and an intentional walk loaded the bases with nobody out. Here Joe Altobelli, batting for Dick Brown, hit a long fly to Jimmy Pitsalis in deep right to plate the winning run.

Jimmy Pitsalis' home run in the third inning of the nightcap gave the visitors a 2-1 lead on Pitula who was substituting for Mike Garcia, out with an injured heel. But the lead didn't last the inning out. A single by Woodling, two walks and singles by Roger Maris and Russ Nixon sent the Tribe ahead to stay, 4-2.

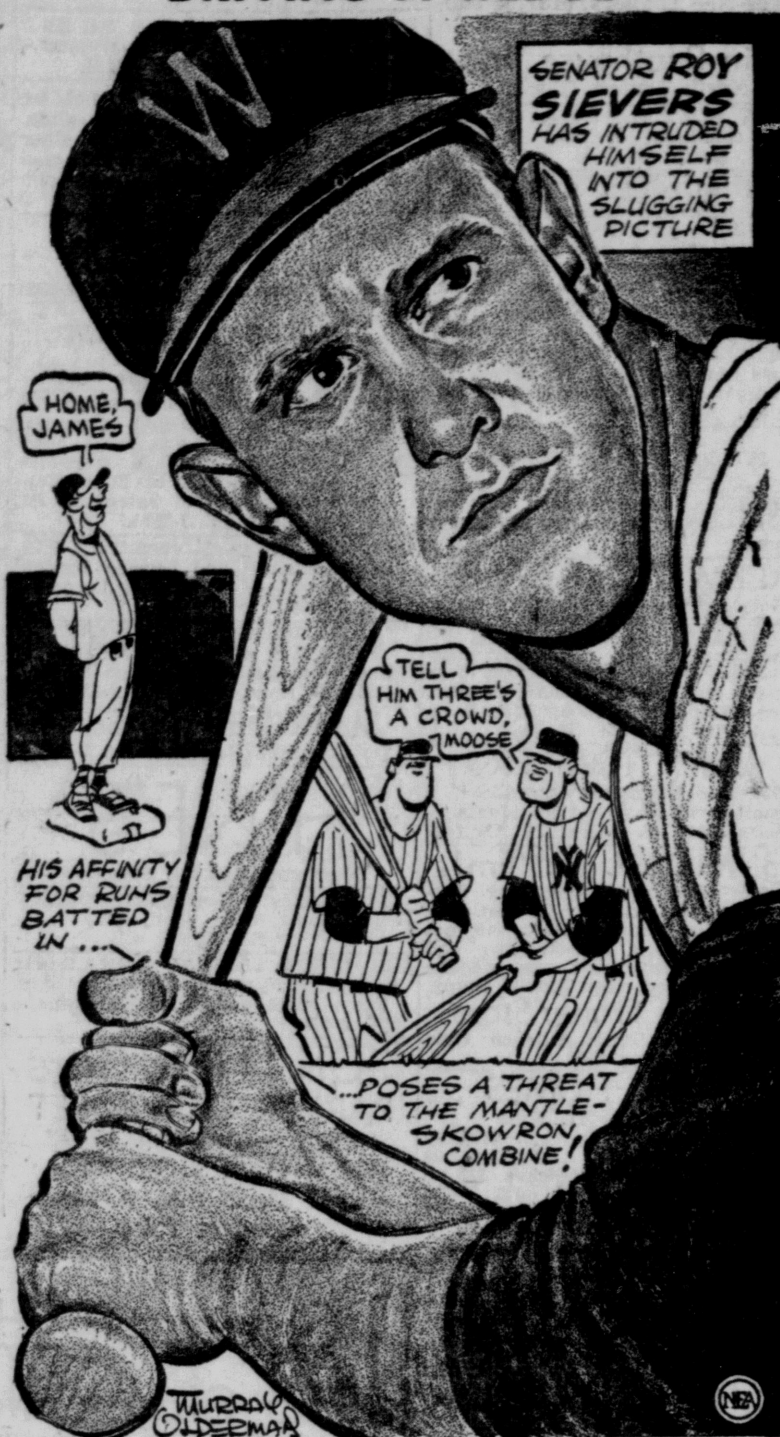

In the big eighth, Al Smith led off with a walk and drew another walk before the inning was over. Third baseman Frank Malzone dropped a throw from Dean Stone on a bunt. Gene Stephens fumbled in left field and Jackie Jensen threw wild on Bob Avila's double for three costly Red Sox errors in this rally.

WINS TENNIS TITLE

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Top-seeded Billy O'Neil took his second Ohio Valley Invitation tennis title in a row Sunday with a 6-0, 6-3 victory over Shaw Emmons, Dayton.

Hoad Crushes
Frank Sedgman
In Tournament

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Lew Hoad, the stoical Australian, said today he was just as nervous as could be when he made his professional tennis debut — but in the next breath he revealed that he caught a half-hour nap just before he was called on the court.

"I really was nervous," Hoad laughed. "I can sleep any time, of course, but once I start swinging my racket I forget it. But I was as nervous as, say, when I stepped on the court for the final at Wimbledon."

Hoad, who signed right after he won at Wimbledon for the second straight year, began to earn the $125,000 Jack ramer is giving him over the next two for three costly Red Sox errors in this rally.

The 6,500 spectators at the Staid Westside Tennis Club rarely have seen the type of tennis put on by Hoad. He was a living terror, beating back everything Sedgman had to offer. Sedgman managed to break his service just once, in the second game of the third set.

Vic Seixas Victory
In Western Tourney

MILWAUKEE (AP) — For the first time in the 50-year history of the event Vic Seixas Sunday retired the men's singles cup of the Western Open tennis tournament by crushing Texan Tut Bartzon for the 1957 championship.

Seixas, the nation's third ranking player, overcame a slow start and never permitted his opponent to get his game working. Bartzon, of Dallas, battled in the first set as Seixas won 7-5, but then couldn't keep pace as the Philadelphia quickly closed out the match 6-2, 6-2.

The women's singles championship went to Karol Fageros of Miami, Fla., who had an easy time of it as she defeated Lois Felix of Meriden, Conn., 6-3, 6-2. Seixas and Sammy Giammalva of Houston, Tex., captured the doubles title by stopping Joaquin Reyes of Mexico City and David Harum, St. Petersburg, Fla., 6-4, 9-7.

Miss Fageros and Miss Derlene Hard combined to take the doubles by beating Miss Felix and Margaret Bonstrom, of New York City, 6-1, 6-0.

The Long Island Aggies of Farmingdale, N.Y., won the Knickerbocker Conference baseball race with an 8-1 record. Long Island University was second, winning six league games out of eight.

Ohio 5-Day Forecast

OHIO—Temperatures will average a little above normal; normal high 86-89, normal low 64-66. Near-normal temperatures Tuesday through Thursday, becoming quite warm Friday and Saturday. Widely scattered thundershowers indicated about Thursday with rainfall averaging less than one-tenth inch.

The present day General Robert E. Lee is stationed at Langley Air Force Base, Va. He is president of the Society of Air Force Clinical Surgeons.

A MAN AND HIS HOSS — Little Trigger, a miniature Shetland pony, and his master, James Todd, take time out for a short nap as the temperature soars over the 100-degree mark in Dallas, Tex. Trigger not only likes taking naps, but enjoys riding in an automobile and watching television. Though only 5½ months old, he seems to prefer humans to horses.
